Week Ten, Term One, 2016

Share the Spirit....

Dear Parents and Carers,

The St Gregory's School Walk against Bullying and Violence Walkathon is next Friday and we continue to celebrate the Year of Mercy. There is a connection between the two.

Teaching children to be kind, compassionate, forgiving, and merciful is important, especially in a world where bullying is such a huge problem. According to BullyingStatistics.org, approximately one out of seven students in school has been a victim of a bully or a bully. While there are currently many campaigns and programs to end bullying, bullying statistics continue to show that this is a serious problem. One of the best ways to stop the bullying problem is for parents to start teaching children important values and characteristics at home. Teaching children important values, such as showing mercy to others, can help stop bullying before it begins. Here's a closer look at the definition of mercy, the importance of leading your children by example, and some helpful ideas you can use to teach your children how to be merciful to others.

What is mercy? Before you can teach your child about this important characteristic, you have to define merciful. According to the Oxford Dictionaries, the definition of mercy is "Compassion or forgiveness shown toward someone whom it is within one's power to punish or harm." Mercy is all about a combination of compassion and forgiveness, even when it's possible to harm someone else. In fact, being merciful involves being compassionate and forgiving when someone else does not deserve it.

It is easy to be angry with someone and to treat that individual badly, which is why bullying often occurs. Sometimes bullies bully other children because they are angry at something else in their life and they take it out on someone else. In other cases, bullies may become angry at something another child does to them, so they lash back instead of showing mercy and compassion. Conflicts are bound to happen to children, no matter their age. As children grow older, conflicts are more likely to linger. It is important for children to learn to show mercy when conflicts occur instead of holding onto anger and bitterness.

One of the best ways you can teach your kids to be merciful, forgiving, and compassionate is to start leading by example. When children are young, they learn a lot from observation. If you want them to learn about mercy, then you have to show children how to be merciful in your own life.

Are you treating others with mercy? Do you treat your children with compassion? Are you forgiving when your children do something wrong? It's important to ask yourself these questions because your children will learn so much from your actions. Think about how you treat others, especially your children. For example, if your child drops a glass full of juice on the floor, do you get angry and yell at your child or do you show mercy and forgiveness? If someone at work does something unkind to you, do your children see you lash out at that person?

You will find that you can teach small lessons in mercy in everyday life. When your child forgets to do something and is genuinely sorry, your reaction will teach a lesson. If your spouse does something that upsets you, you have a chance to show compassion instead of anger. Start paying attention to the small things in life, taking every chance possible to show your children how to show mercy to others.

Mercy is often a hard concept for children to understand, but it's important for children learn how to be merciful to others. When parents lead by example, they can help their children learn how to show this characteristic to others. It is possible to teach your child more about being merciful, compassionate, and forgiving, preventing your child from turning into a bully in the future.

From the Principal.....

PRAYERS: We continue to hold in our thoughts and prayers Melissa, Simon, Patrick and Joseph Agius. The Funeral for Angel Alexis last week was a lovely tribute for a much loved baby girl.

EASTER LITURGY: The 'pilgrimage' liturgy that we all participated in last Thursday was a very special way to focus on the true meaning of Easter. I was very proud of how well the students participated in the singing. Special thanks to the students of Year 6 who led us so beautifully in the retelling of the Easter story. Today we had a wonderful celebration of the Resurrection. My thanks to our Religious Education Coordinator who led rehearsals and coordinated the year groups.

ANZAC DAY: All students and parents who are current or former members of the Armed Services are invited to participate in the ANZAC Day March on Monday 25th April. We will assemble from 10am near the Council Chambers in Crawford Street, Queanbeyan. Students participating are to wear full school winter uniform.

ENROLMENT PERIOD: For Archdiocesan Catholic Schools the Official Enrolment Period for 2017 is from Monday 2nd May till Friday 20th May. (Weeks 2, 3 and 4 of next term). Parents of Year 6 students will note that Catholic High Schools are advertising Open Days and Information Nights in our newsletter. Parents are responsible for securing high school enrolments for their children.

WYD: Ryan Matchett teacher of 3Gold and our Aboriginal Contact person has been invited by Catholic Education to attend World Youth Day this year. This year the event will be held in Krakow, Poland in July. St Gregory's Parish is fundraising so that other young people from Queanbeyan can attend. They currently have a raffle with the First Prize a Quilt that is hand appliqued plus machine pieced 165cmx160cm. Second prize is Porcelain Dolls. Tickets are $3 each or 2 for $5 and are available at school offices.

WALKATHON: We are really counting down now and our Walkathon is only 10 days away. This year the House that raises the most money will have a movie and popcorn session. This way everyone has a chance to have a reward for the hard work of collecting donations. There will be individual prizes for the highest individual sponsorship amount.

WORLD AUTISM AWARENESS DAY: Will be celebrated on Saturday 2nd April. Autism spectrum disorder, commonly known as ASD, affects how people communicate and interact with others. It affects how they make sense of the world. Autism is a developmental condition that typically lasts throughout a person's lifetime. People with ASD experience difficulties with communication, social interaction and restricted/repetitive interests and behaviours. These difficulties are often accompanied by behavioural challenges and sensory issues. We have a number of students that have been diagnosed with ASD. Sadly, often their symptoms are identified as bad behaviour. The more we know about ASD and how it impacts on the lives of our students the more we can be merciful and compassionate.

MOTHERS DAY STALL

Don't forget to continue sending in your donations for the Mother's Day Stall please. Gifts are required at school by Friday, 8 April. Some ideas for donations include: candles, face washer and soap, chocolates, notebooks, diary, journals, pens, photo frames, hand lotion, jewellery, kitchen gadgets, cook books, tea towels, coffee mugs, etc.

For every donation students will receive a raffle ticket to win a wonderful prize basket. If you would like to volunteer to help with preparing gifts or on the stall on the day please email Di Smith at diannesmith82@gmail.com - Thank you.

NAPLAN
